

Collaboration and Partnerships

The institution has established a structured procedure for entering into collaborations and partnerships with Open Distance and eLearning (ODEL) institutions, professional bodies, agencies, and industrial sectors at both national and international levels. This framework ensures that collaborations are strategic, mutually beneficial, and aligned with the institution's objectives.

The impact of these collaborations and partnerships is assessed across three key areas: teaching and learning, research, and community development. By evaluating the outcomes in these domains, the institution can measure the effectiveness of its partnerships and identify areas for improvement or expansion.

To formalize and guide these collaborations and partnerships, the institution relies on Memorandums of Understanding (MOUs). These MOUs outline the terms, objectives, and responsibilities of each party involved, providing a clear and binding framework for cooperation, and ensuring that all partnerships are conducted in a transparent and accountable manner.
